Foreword

College life is a journey through unfamiliar countrysides of new concepts, through valleys of doubt, up hills of elation, and over roads of many detours and conflicting guideposts. Although there are conflicts, doubts, and sorrows of college life, the student learns to surpass them, leaving behind a well-travelled road. With this idea in mind, the Indianhead staff has chosen as its theme THE WELL-TRAVELLED ROAD.

The well-travelled road is symbolic of the undertaking upon which a freshman embarks when he enters Pembroke State College. To the freshman, the well-travelled road is only a path -- a narrow opening which is a beginning of a new journey. This path is tangled and marred by undergrowth of disbelief and uncertainty. To the sophomore, the well-travelled road is a trail, easier to follow because of past use, but still blocked by numerous obstacles. To the junior, the trail becomes a paved road, wider and richer in experience and knowledge. It is, however, in the senior year that the well-travelled road reaches its destination. The senior year is symbolic of the end of one journey, but the commencement of a new and longer trip -- the highway of life.

Symbolic of a new milepost along our well-travelled road, Dr. Walter J. Gale, retiring President, gives his best wishes to English E. Jones, newly appointed President.

PEMBROKE STATE COLLEGE

PEMBROKE, NORTH CAROLINA

June 3, 1963

OFFICE OF
THE PRESIDENT

My dear Friends:

Like life-supplying veins in the broad, rich body of America is her system of three million miles of traversable roads. Some of these are expensive four and six lane highways which carry great burdens of commerce and uncountable thousands of motorists on the nation's business and the people's pleasures. Others are smaller roads connecting one town with another town, one city with another. And then there are the narrow dirt roads which seem lost in those out-of-the-way places where America still lives as she did in quieter times.

In 1887 a small educational trail began in the village of Pembroke. This was not a broad or long trail, but from its origin its primary purpose was to lead those who chose to travel upon it to a more abundant life. Through the years this trail has broadened and lengthened because of the hundreds who have chosen to tread upon it. It is not yet a parkway or a nationally known turnpike, but a surfaced highway dedicated to the youth throughout America seeking its service.

The Senior Class of 1962-63 is only a segment of these many travelers, but it is an important segment. May I congratulate the Senior Class on the showing it has made this year. Our usual high standards have been maintained, and I am grateful.

Sincerely,

ENGLISH E. JONES, President
Pembroke State College

Dedication

To the man who has enriched our lives with understanding of human nature, encouraged intellectual curiosity, and taught us humility, the Senior Class gratefully dedicates the 1963 Indianhead to Mr. James S. Farmer.

The years of college represent a transition from sheltered security to relative independence, which often present grave problems in adjustment to new ideas and ethical values. Mr. Farmer has ever been a source of renewed confidence and faith to overcome the obstacles that seem insurmountable. With this awareness, we wish to convey that this dedication is not a mere gesture, but a testimonial to his insight and his humane concern for the students.

DR. WARREN I. SMITH

Teacher of the Year

The Senior Class, in appreciation for his unrelenting enthusiasm and brilliant talent to convey history to its broadest limits and make the life of the past meaningful and exciting to all of his students, has chosen Dr. Warren I. Smith as the Teacher of the Year.

Science and Mathematics

The Division of Science and Mathematics provides us with the guides who lead us through the fields and forests, into the barnyards, through the halls of great city industries, and into outer space. Our guides show us more than outward beauty or ugliness; from telescope to microscope, we observe the smallest and largest particles and learn to calculate our way across the country and to the stars.

As we enter the halls of education and psychology, we must pause briefly to consider our fellow travelers. Through home economics, physical education, and psychology, we learn how we may aid one another along the paths of learning and even down the road of life. It is through the Division of Education that we prepare to take our places as guides to lead others along the way.

Senior Class

CLASS OFFICERS STANDING: Charles Maynor, Student Council Representative; Hartman Brewington, President. SEATED: Patsy Maynor, Secretary; Braxton Hodge, Vice-President.

The Seniors have progressed for a period of four years along the highway of college life. These four years have been marked by numerous unpredictable events and unforgettable experiences. The guideposts which aided in their travel were understanding administrative officials, patient professors, and sacrificing parents. As a result of this sojourn, they are now ready to embark upon a journey that will take them to all phases and limits of life. They feel that they are prepared to take their places in the stream of human progress down the vast highways of life. Many will pause and feel a pang of sadness and loneliness as they depart from Pembroke, but they will have many pleasant memories to enrich their future travel.

Senior Superlatives

Each year the seniors select twelve members from their class as senior superlatives. Superlatives are chosen according to individual qualities which best exemplify a particular characteristic possessed by the individual chosen.

Friendliest

Richard Powell
Era Lowry

In this world of stress and trial
Stand Era and Cooter, friends to the rank and file.
Life will find this congenial pair
With friends galore. They'll never despair.

Best Looking

Hartman Brewington
Mary Helen Turner

Of all our class we love best to see
Hartman, the handsome; Mary Helen, the pretty.
Our own Mr. and Miss America will be
Admired far and wide for such beauty.

Mr. & Miss Personality

Tommy McDonald
Prudy Cashwell

With personality galore
We find Prudy and Tommy in the fore.
Their winning ways and loving hearts
Will make them fondly known in many parts.

Most Versatile

Reomia Locklear
James B. Chavis

At almost any time, in almost any place
Reomia and James do everything in life's mad race.
So much have done this versatile two
That we expect much from them, both old and new.

Most Dependable

Elaine Faye Jacobs
Roderick Locklear

Rod and Elaine, when we're in a pinch
Can be depended upon to act and not flinch.
We'll remember the time that they have spent
Keeping our class strong and graduation-bent.

Most Likely To Succeed

Benford Lowry, Jr.
Francis Bowen

So much potential do they show,
We are very glad to know
That years from now when we're in our need
We can turn to Fran and Benford, Most Likely to Succeed.

Most Studious

Braxton Hodge
Martha Horton

With stacks of books, on the steps we find
Braxton and Martha our best of mind,
And in the future we know there will be
Two bright professors on someone's faculty.

Best Leaders

Thomas McKay
Sylvia Sampson

Through our college days, down a road four years long,
Routing us from despair, and leading us to song,
Tom and Sylvia have us to a swift pace
Knowing when to prod us so we would win the race.

Wittiest

Patrick Lynch
Sally Spaulding

The clowns and jesters we claim for our own
Pat and Sally make us laugh and groan.
Such comics as these could not fail to be
Writers for Gleason's show on T V.

Most Talented

Plummer Locklear
Patsy Maynor

In Carnegie Hall, on Hollywood's stages,
Plummer and Patsy will be show biz' rages
Happy we've had them and hoping a hit they'll score,
Patsy for Ed Sullivan, Plummer playing for Gary Moore.

BRAVE

Most Athletic

Byrtis Dial
Joseph Pugh

Joe and Byrtis our athletes best
In basketball, baseball, and the rest.
We're proud of these two and in the future we'll see
Byrtis on the court, and Joe at the tee.

Most Popular

Patsy Maynor
Mac McInnis

A precocious little sprite
Is the popularity mite.
In our class, Mac and Pat it has bitten,
And by their charms we've all been smitten.

In Memoriam

Stephen A. Brooks

God's time is the best time. For in Him we live, and move, and have our being. And we die at His appointed time, when He wills. For the covenant from the beginning is, Thou shalt die the death. Even so, come Lord Jesus.

Today shalt thou be with me in paradise. In peace, and joy I pass away: in God's will confiding: my heart and soul, soft and still. For my God has promised me that death will be a peaceful sleep.

UNDERGRADS

Junior Class

CLASS OFFICERS: Walter Oxendine, President; Jane Chavis, Secretary; James B. Chavis, Student Council Representative; James Chavis, Vice-President; Miss Barbara Ransel, Faculty Advisor.

The Junior Class has come a long way on this old dusty road. Each Junior has had to stop and think of the experiences encountered while traveling over this difficult course. The Junior raises his head to gaze upon the glorious Senior year, hoping that at the end of the road he will have accomplished each desire and goal which prompted him to take the first step. Along this winding road there have been many indications of success. The traveler has wandered and enjoyed the pleasures of the countryside which represents college life. As with all well-traveled roads, there must be improvements and maintenance, so the traveler must stop and try to correct or improve any obstacles to progress. The Junior traveler has overcome many of these obstacles that blocked his path, and he is now ready to enter the rich and rewarding senior road.

Sophomore Class

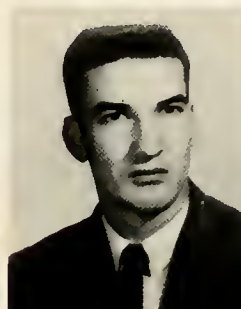

CLASS OFFICERS: Alton Chavis, Student Council Representative; Fred Berry, Vice-President.

The Sophomores are neither at the end of the well-traveled road nor at the beginning. They are no longer homeless freshmen, for Pembroke State College has become their home. They occupy a place that belongs uniquely to Sophomores. Their road is begun, but it is far from finished. Their trail contains obstacles, but they are eager and willing to gain the tops of the hills. No longer are the faces strange, and no longer are they fearful of unknowns. They are ready to take their places in the growing tide of college life. They are more capable of giving of themselves to the activities which demand their time, to the students and teachers who have become their friends, and to the way of life which they are forging for themselves, their school, and their country.

Freshman Class

Each Freshman will remember his first few days at Pembroke as those endless days of mental and physical turmoil -- the uncertainty of matriculation into a world quite unlike anything he had ever experienced. The path he followed during his first few weeks was made somewhat brighter and easier to follow by the warm hospitality shown to him by the upperclassmen and faculty alike. Traveling this road for the first time was not as difficult as he had previously anticipated, and within a short time he found himself adjusting and actually belonging to that unique group known as the student body.

Alpha Psi Omega is a national honorary society in dramatics. The society's auxiliary, The Pembroke Players, consists of students interested in producing plays for the entertainment of the student body. Currently there are no active members of the society among the students, although there is a large group of pledges.

Mr. Howard Woody, Co-Advisor; James E. Lowry, President; Mr. Ernest Dudley, Co-Advisor.

The Art Club's aim is to present a creative atmosphere for both art majors and others who are interested in art. This is attempted by casual drawing trips, by visits to actual art displays, and by programs with art lecturers.

The Band

The Pembroke State College Band is under the baton of Mr. Ralph Finn. Although this is his first year with Pembroke, the Band has continued to make major contributions to the College and the community. The Band participated in the Pembroke Veteran's Day Parade as well as Christmas parades at Bennettsville and Red Springs. Moreover, the Band was seen and heard at Homecoming events, the social sponsored by the Band, and various assembly programs. This year, a clarinet clinic was held at the Music Department, in which students and band directors from the North Carolina high schools participated. In addition to this clinic, Mr. Finn has organized several ensemble groups which have performed in several assemblies. Every year at Christmas the Band and Chorus present a Christmas Concert which is the highlight of the pre-Christmas activities. Each year a Spring Concert is performed, as well as several high school visitation programs.

Baptist Student Movement

A faith, a church, a religion--all offer men an opportunity to realize the importance of a belief in a Supreme Being, an Almighty greater than himself. For while man must have faith in his own capacities, he must be able to look to a Higher Being for assurance and confidence in the future. This organization affords its members this opportunity and necessary guidance.

Circle K

Dedicated to the service of community and campus are the young men of the Circle K. This affiliate of the Kiwanis Club is new to the college this year. Already they have made themselves a driving force, helping in many ways to make college life flow more smoothly. Among the many things they are doing are the collection of admission fees at all ball games, the preparation of a handbook for the orientation of incoming freshmen, and the blood donation program.

The club demands high standards of its members, who must pass a rigid screening of a club committee before they are invited to join. Once they become members, they must retain a record of service and dedication which is in accordance with the goals of the Circle K.

Signing up more blood donors.

This past fall, students were assailed from all directions by the men of the Circle K who were asking all who passed to join the list of blood donors. In the previous years, the college has often been asked to find students to donate blood for members of the community. The Circle K has made a well organized club program, thus taking a load from the shoulders of the Dean who formerly was entrusted with this task.

Chorus

Music offers some of the greatest joys and most sublime comforts afforded to man, and it is in the actual performance of great music that the deepest appreciation and greatest satisfaction is derived. The Pembroke Chorus is open to the entire student body, offering the participants the opportunity to perform good music so that the entire community might enjoy the fruits of their efforts. Under the direction of Mr. Fred Bohrer, the chorus gives two major concerts a year, one at Christmas and another in the spring. Performances are also given at various local civic and private functions.

Even though a machine may replace her in a factory, and a man may replace her in her business position, a woman will forever find consolation in the fact that humanity will never be able to find anything to replace the warmth and security she is able to provide in the home. Truly she is indispensable in this capacity as homemaker, and her job, as such, is as important as any other she could wish to occupy. However, she has the choice of functioning successfully or not in this position, and her decision and actions determine the well-being of all those with whom she is concerned. Her strength forecasts the strength of a nation.

Above is the Home Economics Residence House which provides an apartment for home economics girls as well as a guest room and a faculty apartment. All Home Economics majors must take a home residence course which involves residing in and completely managing the home.

Each year the Home Economics Club sponsors a bazaar just before the Christmas vacation. The girls sell crafts that they have made and serve light refreshments for the visitors. Below are Miss Kanable at the bazaar tables and Mr. Pierle who is about to enjoy some Christmas punch.

What is an annual? Is it a book of memories, a directory of information, or just another dust collector? An annual holds a different meaning for each individual connected with its production. To the casual reader, it may simply be a moment's interest; to the college staff, who know the efforts necessary for its completion, it may simply be another job and, at times, an imposition. Perhaps it is only to the Indianhead Staff that the year's annual edition means something deeper, more memorable. To them, it is the child born as the result of a year's long and diligent supervision, inspiration, disappointment, goals, and failures. Then, finally, the emergence of a reality from all of those dreams, and in their hands is held a tangible evidence of planning, of hoping, and sometimes even praying.

Methodist Student Movement

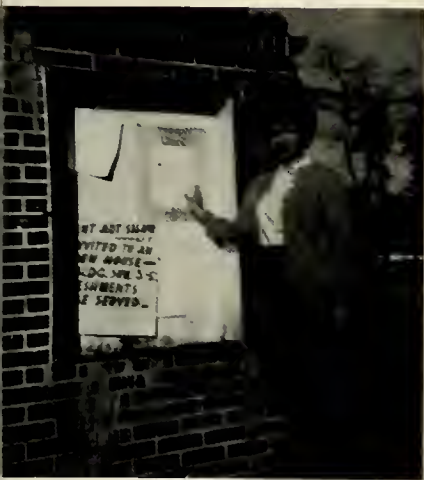

The responsibility of charity--the giving of oneself and one's efforts--is, in itself, one of the basic foundations of this organization. The importance of the Methodist Student Movement rests upon its desire to make some effort to satisfy the needs of all people. It recognizes the requirements of charity, and endeavors to help itself through offering its help to others.

The PINE NEEDLE

PEMBROKE STATE COLLEGE

PEMBROKE, NORTH CAROLINA

Pine Needle Growth Parallels Pembroke Progress

The "Pine Needle" is the fruit that is produced by the Journalism class at Pembroke State College. It serves many purposes on the campus as well as in the surrounding area. The "Pine Needle's" first and foremost purpose is to provide the students of the Journalism class with an opportunity to gain knowledge, insight, and experience in writing news items, feature stories, and editorials which they will actually see in print. It also furnishes them with on the job training in almost all phases of newspaper work, such as composing headlines, proof reading, editing, and makeup.

In a wider range the "Pine Needle" serves all of the students and faculty members at P.S.C. and many of the parents and friends in the surrounding area. It brings these people news items and information about college activities that they would not receive by other means. It also serves the students outside of the Journalism class by giving them an opportunity to voice certain opinions and ideas.

The "Pine Needle" is a part of Pembroke State College. Its history is almost as old as the college, and it like the college has grown tremendously during the past years. It has advanced from a typewritten mimeographed single page to an eight page tabloid size newspaper printed on a modern printing press.

The Pine Needle is proud of its heritage and looks forward to serving the students, faculty, and friends for many years to come.

Getting ready for the Preparation Period are the members of the PINE NEEDLE staff.

Field Trip To Charlotte

One of the main objectives of the Journalism course is to give the students practical training. They gain this training in various ways, and the method which the students enjoy most is having the opportunity to go on field trips to various news gathering organizations such as newspaper publishing firms, radio stations, and television stations. Trips such as these are very informative and aid the students in obtaining a much broader education in newspaper work.

Field trips give the students some much needed rest from the regular, day to day class lectures, and they give the students an opportunity to see how commercial newspaper work is carried out. The Journalism class has visited such newspapers as, The Charlotte News; The Charlotte Observer; The News Journal, in Raeford; The Robesonian, in Lumberton. They have also had the opportunity to visit many of the radio and television stations in south and central North Carolina.

Editor's Chair

A Reporter Records

Skull Sessions Spark

Snoopers Sayings

A brief pause for the camera just before one of the Cranium Sessions or Think Periods--that time to determine what shall and shall not go into the PINE NEEDLE.

The students really seek to give all of the news available, covering all activities of the campus as near as possible. This ranges from new books in the library to the next Art Series program to the standing of the ball teams.

One of the difficulties of putting out a monthly paper is to get it ready while it is still news. From the Cranium Session to set the list of articles moving for the month until the students read the finished product demands almost three weeks. This makes the reporters work under a handicap-----Sometimes writing as if the event had already become history at least ten days before it occurs.

Space Spells

Special Significance

It is time to do the dummy. Most students do not have any idea of the amount of effort necessary to put the PINE NEEDLE TOGETHER for each issue.

Each article must have the words counted, and then the space allotted to it. The headline must be written. The number of inches must come out to the exact degree as lead type cannot shrink--nor can it be stretched.

Gathered in the picture above are the Journalism students engaged in the horrible battle of "making it fit." Heard over and over again is "Do we have enough?"

Some article must be cut, shortened to fit the number of inches left. Others must have some words added, additional information must be sought and put into correct form.

The life of a reporter can be both exciting and embarrassing. The sensation is grand to feel you are the only one who really knows what is happening and it is up to you to reveal it to the public. Yet it can sometimes prove embarrassing because of a quick expected change in plans.

It is a special enjoyment to be a reporter on the Pine Needle staff because you come to know the students better. You learn their likes and dislikes and can better write to fit their needs.

The life of a reporter on the Pine Needle staff of Pembroke State College is one of MUCH activity. It consists of chasing professors and students wildly from building to building and at the same time trying to remember that Mr. Woody and Mr. Dudley are two distinctly different people as are Michael Church and Michael Ridge. Rain or shine, you must run to and fro but it's fun.

Leaders

Whether for reason or tradition, a group of cheerleaders is an unquestioned necessity that must be added to the agenda of nearly every sports activity. The enthusiasm that accompanies any sport provides a spirit for the event. It is here that some means of organization and leadership proves invaluable for the extraction of inspiration, the qualities of support, and loyalty. With their bright colors, their unending store of pep, and their enthusiasm, they have become as much a part of sports as the players themselves.

BRAVES BEAT PAST PERFORMANCES

The Pembroke Braves started their 1962-1963 season with Mr. Richard Lauffer as head man. Although last year's graduating lettermen left some spaces that good men would have to fill, an influx of transfer students and freshmen gave the Braves an added punch. As the season progressed, it was to become more evident that the Braves were back on the road to winning ways. All season the hoopers showed plenty of fight and hustle, and although this was not always enough at times to win all of the ball games, they were the type of team that fought down to the last second. This action created a new Pembroke record of 17 wins and only 9 losses.

Diamond Jubilee

Homecoming

Diamond Jubilee / Homecoming

The homecoming activities ushered in the Diamond Jubilee year of 1962-63. For many alumni this celebration will not soon be forgotten. More than 300 alumni and friends turned out for the celebration marking the seventy-fifth year of education for the Indians of Robeson County.

In 1887, Pembroke State College was born, not as a college, but as a Normal School for the Indians of Robeson County. At this time only those above fifteen years of age might attend, and then only if they signed a contract to teach at least one year.

From year to year, with the patience and loyalty of its friends, the Normal School for Indians has grown from one building to many buildings, and from one teacher to more than forty. The rate of growth established Pembroke as the fastest growing college in the State, a fact substantiated by newspaper stories throughout North Carolina.

Dr. Herbert G. Oxendine greeted the returning alumni as they registered.

A buffet luncheon was served following the registration. Good things come to all who wait . . .

And this proved to be no exception!

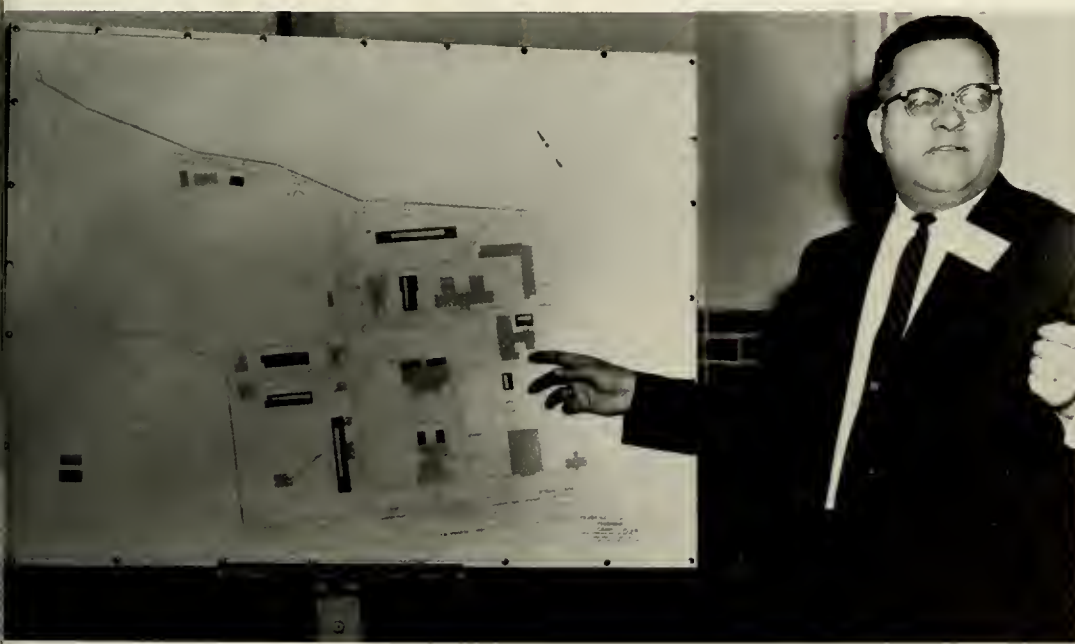

The administrative officers and guests honored the returning alumni.

President English E. Jones talked of the future of Pembroke State College. The State Legislature has been requested to appropriate one million thirty-eight thousand dollars for the 1963-65 biennium. With this money, there will be erected two girls' dormitories, one boys' dormitory, additions to the gymnasium, a new music room, a home economics residence house, faculty apartments, and a student activities building. These added facilities are designed to increase the enrollment to 1500 students.

Mr. Waltz Maynor

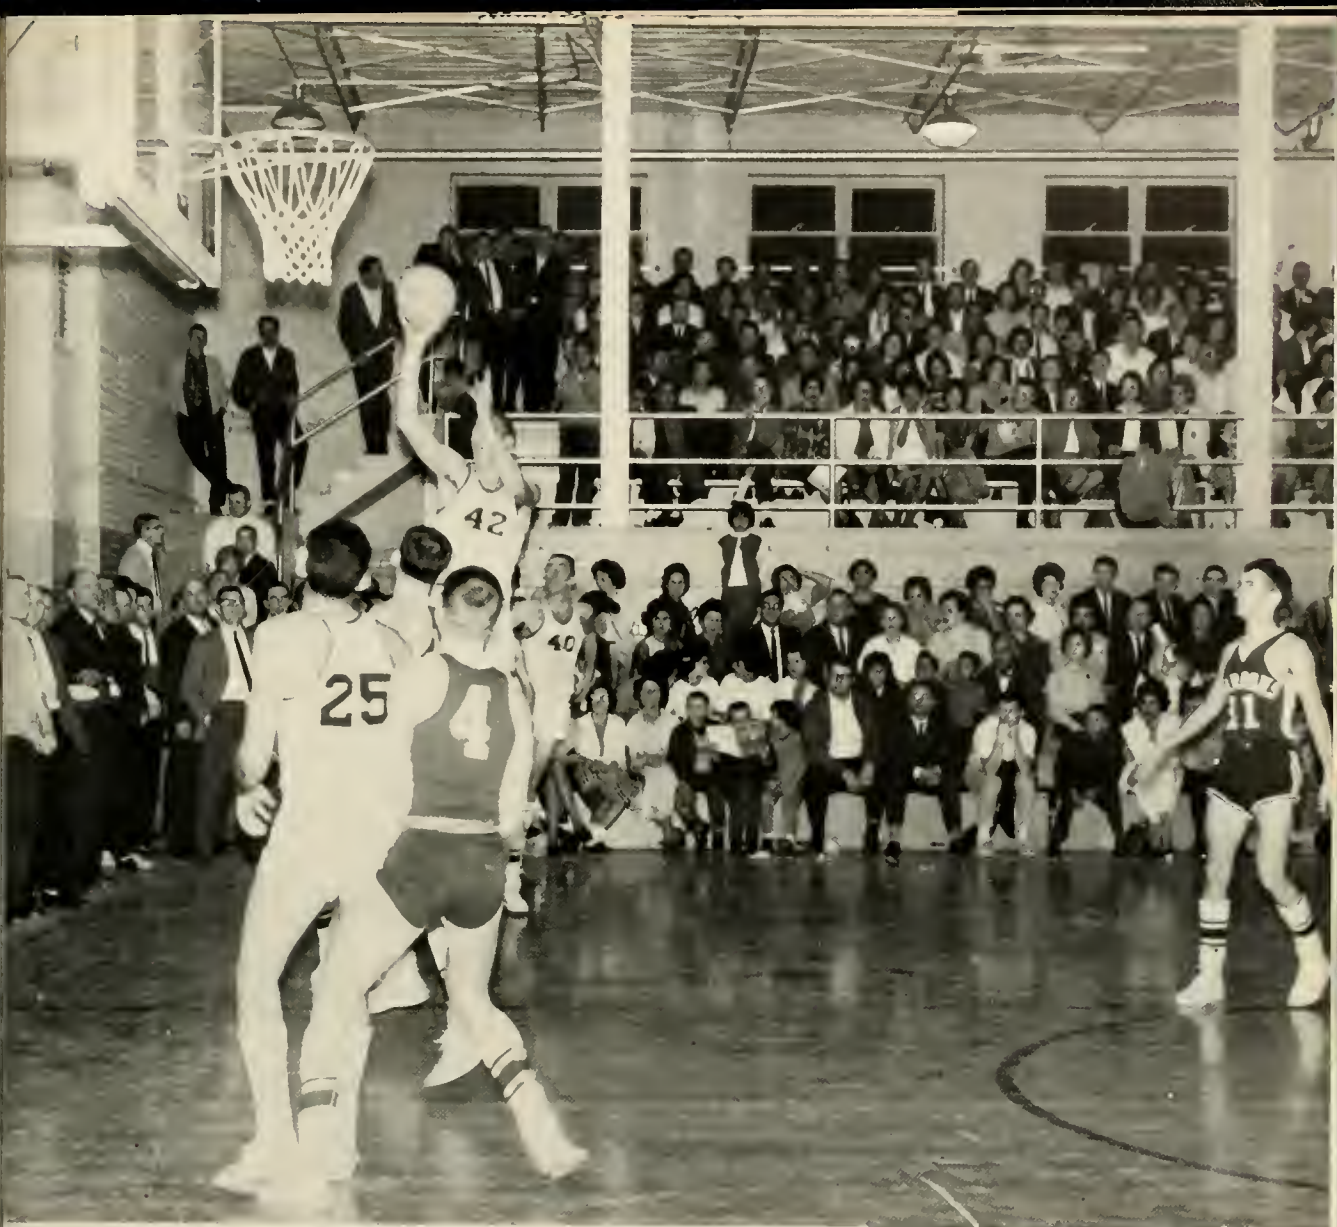

President of the newly reorganized Alumni Association.

After the luncheon, individual class reunion meetings were held at various locations on the campus. When these meetings were culminated, an evening picnic was held outside the president's home. Informality, fellowship, and frankfurters headed the agenda of this gathering.

Students, alumni, and guests enjoyed the Homecoming game with the Pembroke Braves pitted against the College of Charleston. At the half, Miss Pembroke State College was crowned, bringing to a climax the weekend activities. Incidentally, we won the game.

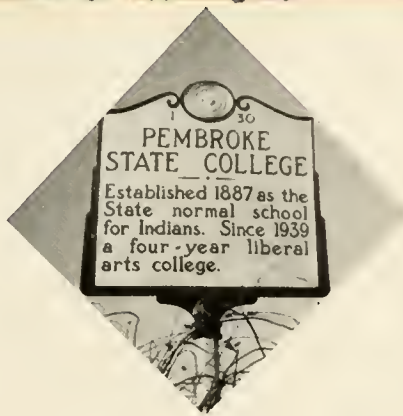

Judy Locklear

Miss Pembroke State College

The apex of the half-time activities was the crowning of Miss Judy Locklear as Miss Pembroke State College.

Diamond Jubilee Celebration

The Diamond Jubilee Celebration was held on May 9th and May 10th. The highlight of the activities was the dedication speech delivered by the Governor of North Carolina, the Honorable Terry Sanford. Four new facilities were named in honor of people who had devoted their lives to Pembroke State College. After the dedication speech, the Dramatics Department presented some one act plays. This was followed by a baseball game and a dance.

The Livermore Library

The ability to recognize in the small opportunities the great chances for service and success was a characteristic recently emphasized in a ceremony honoring Miss Mary Livermore who has devoted fifty years of her life to the people of the Pembroke area. Not only has she faithfully served the people and the churches, but she has been a valuable asset to Pembroke State College as well. For thirteen years she served as Professor of Religious Education, and early took on the added responsibility of chairing that department, The Board of Trustees, recognizing her outstanding abilities, elected her to serve as Dean of Women in which capacity she endeared herself to the students and faculty alike.

It seems a fitting tribute, therefore, to name the Pembroke State College Library "The Livermore Library." Located in the back wing of Sampson Hall, this library has been in service since November of 1947, and is open many hours every week for the use of the students and faculty. The reading room is spacious, comfortable, and convenient for research. It has a seating capacity for more than one hundred people. Among the 33,500 books in the collection are included many valuable research aids as well as authoritative and readable volumes on the many subjects covered in the college curriculum. One may also find inspirational, enjoyable reading for leisure hours. It is to be hoped that students for generations to come will derive guidance, comfort, knowledge, and enjoyment from intelligent use of the Livermore Library, even as students have from personal contact with Miss Mary Livermore.

W. L. Moore Hall

Seventy-five years ago, the North Carolina General Assembly passed an act which established a "Normal School" for the Indians of Robeson County. The Act named W. L. Moore and his associates as a corporation for educational purposes in Robeson County. Since the Act also stipulated that the Indians would have to provide a building within two years, Mr. Moore took a year's leave from his teaching position in order to devote his services completely to the Normal School in order that the project might be completed in the time allotted. Mr. Moore was elected the first teacher and began the initial term in 1887 with fifteen students.

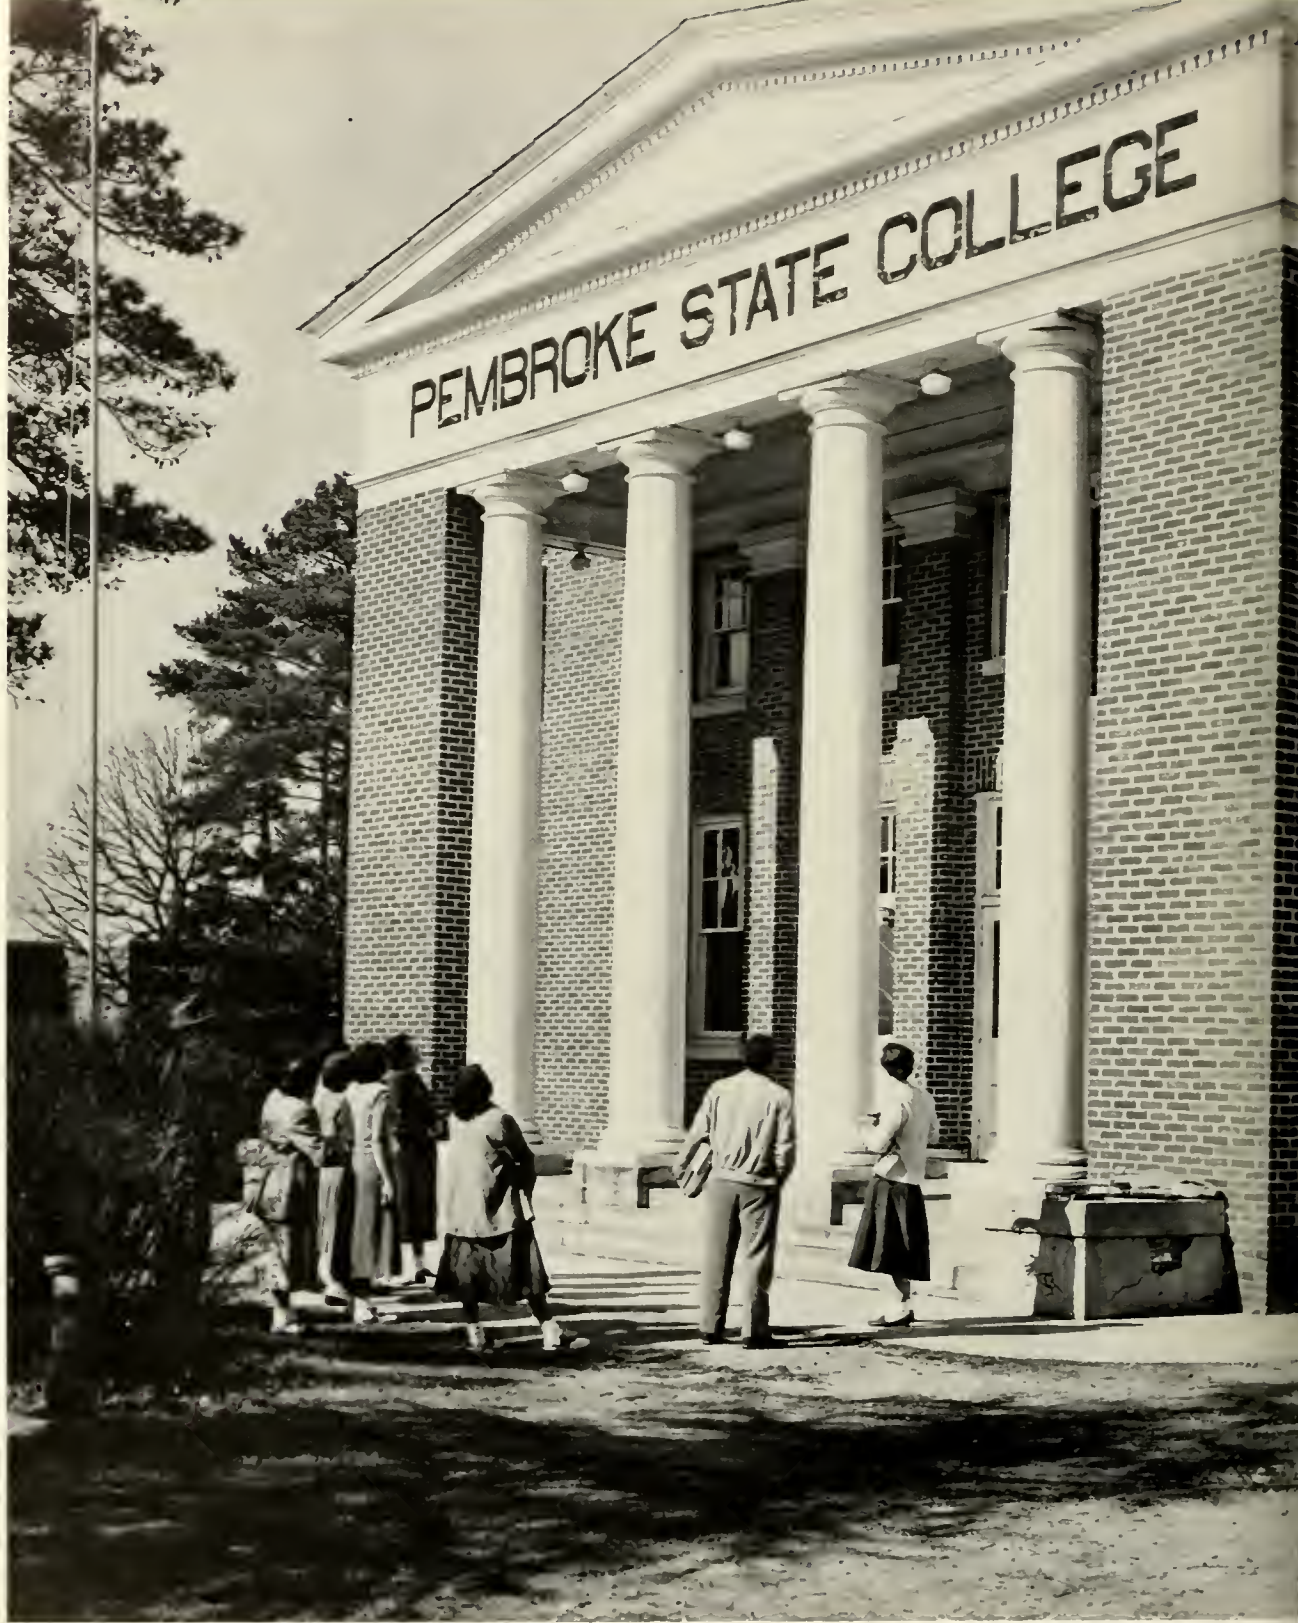

Since W. L. Moore's charter enrollment, the Normal School was moved to its present location, has undergone several name changes, and has been established as a four year liberal arts college with six well equipped academic buildings. The newest of these buildings was erected in 1951 to house the Departments of Art, Music, Dramatics, and Home Economics. At the central part of the building is a small auditorium which is well suited for recitals, lectures, fashion shows, and the like. The officials of Pembroke State College, on the occasion of the Diamond Jubilee, have dedicated this building to W. L. Moore, without whose service and devotion to education for the Indians it might never have been built.

L. W. Jacobs Hall

The backbone of any college or university is the board of trustees. Usually composed of prominent people in the community, this group directs the course of the college and votes on major policy issues. Being a member of the board carries with it great responsibility which includes not only the present faculty, students, and community, but the generations of alumni as well. Mr. L. W. Jacobs has been highly successful in his position as Chairman of the Pembroke State College Board of Trustees, an office which he has held for thirty-five years. Mr. Jacobs is well suited for this position as he is an ordained Baptist minister and has served as Pastor of Mt. Airy and Harpers Ferry Baptist Churches for the past forty-four years. Among his other positions of leadership, Mr. Jacobs is also a member of the General Board of the North Carolina State Baptist Convention.

It is in appreciation of his continued loyalty, assistance, and service to Pembroke State College that the newest dormitory for boys was named for Mr. Jacobs. The L. W. Jacobs Hall was built in 1961 to house 134 men. It is a modern dormitory built on two levels and arranged in suites of four rooms each. In a rurally located college, adequate dormitory facilities are as essential as a competent board of trustees. It is to be hoped that Mr. Jacobs will continue in his position of Chairman of that Board for many dormitories to come.

Message From The Staff

Members of the INDIANHEAD Staff have attempted to record Pembroke State just as it has been throughout the year. We have used our ideas to put your academics, activities, and organizations in a form that you will cherish for years to come. The happenings of this eventful Diamond Jubilee year were molded into this tangible record. The staff, who worked long and assiduously, will soon be forgotten; but perhaps 1963 as recorded herein will remind every one of you that you were a part of that period of life known as college days.

Artist Series

Supported by part of the student's activity fee, the annual Artist Series brings professional talent in music, art, and drama to Pembroke State College and the surrounding community. The 1962-63 series opened with the Orlin Corey production of THE BOOK OF JOB, a Byzantine mosaic vision utilizing the speaking chorus of ancient Greece to assist in the declamation of the beautiful King James verses.

The American Folk Trio (below) presented modern and traditional folk music.

Moliere's THE SCHOOL FOR WIVES

Wives! Learn to please your husbands! Husbands! Learn to control your wives! A profitable cause in "Happy Marriage" or "The Duties of Women" presented by the National Players of Washington, D.C. To the right is Gerald Simon who plays the young suitor, Horace. Below are Michael Flanagan who portrays Arnolphe and Susan Walker, his young ward to whom he presents a book of rules for a happy marriage.

Dormitory Life

For many of us, one of the most important influences on life and academic development during our college years is living in a dormitory. It is in the dorm room where we spend many of our leisure hours in rest, recreation, and study. For the first time we have to solve our problems without the council of our parents, and we have to make many moral decisions with the knowledge that our only guide, in most cases, is our own conscience. It is here that we have to learn self-discipline, in order to retain satisfactory academic standing, and tolerance of others, so that we can live together.

We shall remember the close friends we have made, many of whom will be cherished for life, and with whom we have spent many hours in study, discussion, and/or friendly recreation.

More than learning facts and figures in classes or participation in supervised extracurricular activities, it is in the dormitory where we learn about ourselves and other people -- in short, it is here where we have had to "grow up."

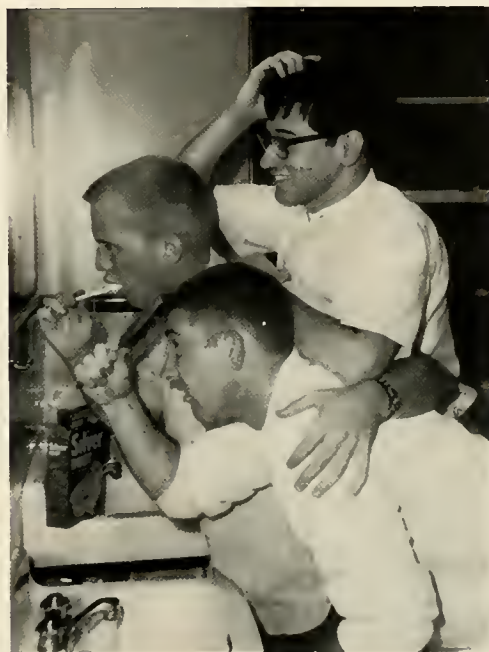

My, but it's warm in here.

Pull it out!

And then she said . . .

7:50 a.m.

To the library???

Check your oil?

Candid Campus

The pause that refreshes.

Good morning, y'all.

I can barely find time to eat.

But I couldn't afford a taxi.

How many F's?

What am I doing here?

Daddy, buy me that!

Who's chicken????
